VARIATION TO BE EXPECTED

Yes

WHAT TO EXPECT?

Horn is a naturally harvested material, so variation in its color and texture are completely normal and expected from piece to piece. This may affect the way dyes and stains are absorbed, causing slight shifts in the color of some pieces, and you might see some scratching, discoloration, and other wear from the period when this material was on the animal. The texture is achieved with hand-held tools, allowing the artist's unique touch to shine in every piece with varying matte and shiny surfaces throughout. Ultimately, these types of variation are what draw us to this material and inspire us to create designs that honor its natural charm.
